Andrew Rothstein, M.A., was born in London in 1898, his parents being Russian political emigrants (members of the SDF and BSP). He was educated at Owen's School, Islington, and Balliol College, Oxford (history scholar). In 1917-19 he served in the Oxford and Bucks L.I. and Hampshire Yeomanry. In December 1920 he became press officer to the first Soviet mission in Britain and in April 1921 London correspondent of the Russian Telegraph Agency (Rosta). Thereafter until September 1945 he worked for the Soviet press as foreign correspondent in London, Geneva and elsewhere. He is bilingual, and visited the USSR fourteen times between the wars; and has lectured and written much on Soviet history, economy, institutions and foreign relations. In 1946 he became temporary lecturer in Russian economic and social studies at the University of London School of Slavonic and East European Studies, and, in 1947, lecturer in Soviet institutions. He is author of The Soviet Constitution (1923), essays on Soviet foreign policy in Problems of Peace (1936-8), Workers in the Soviet Union (1942), Man and Plan in Soviet Economy (1948) and of many articles and translations, including two volumes of documents on wartime Soviet Foreign Policy (1946-7) and Plekhanov, In Defence of Materialism (1947); Foundation member (1920) of the Communist Party; and ex-president (1943-5) of the Foreign Press Association.
